

YOUTH WELL-BEING SURVEY

What is the Youth Well-being Survey and why should I participate?

The Youth Well-being Survey is meant to help communities better understand the experiences of local teens when it comes to their health and well-being. Teens' experiences are important to capture and the more teens within a school that take a survey, the more confident we can be that the survey is a reflection of "real life".

What is the survey used for?

Survey results (results are just a summary of how everyone that took the survey responded to the questions) can be used by adults to make communities more friendly toward and supportive of teens like you. Teens can also use the results to make their own recommendations and plans for action.

Will people know how I answered the questions?

The survey is 100% anonymous. We do not ask for your name or any information that could be used to identify you. The survey is also done online during school hours so no one can track your personal devices or identify your handwriting.

How do I participate?

All students that want to participate must have parent/guardian permission. Parents/guardians are sent information about the survey early in the school year. If you aren't sure if your parent/guardian has given their permission yet, you can show them this and ask them.
